Welcome to the 2023 Community Report Card. This year we are proud to be back with our community engagement programs thriving throughout Australia and Aotearoa/New Zealand.

Our team has focused on strengthening our back-to-basics approach and doing more of what we do best - caring for our community. We have been “living local” through grassroots projects which took place all over the two countries and many communities in which we live and work.

We know we are stronger together, so we have proudly supported our community partnerships and found many ways to work alongside our essential services and frontline workers, providing meaningful disaster support and relief, building resilience and strengthening the impact of these incredible groups.

A sincere thanks to all the community groups and not-for-profit organisations we had the privilege of working alongside this year - your efforts are making a tangible and important difference to those who need it most, and we are grateful for the opportunity to support this work.

We are really excited to see our programs back up and flying after several years of challenging conditions, and we can't wait to continue showing up for people in the year ahead.

Mike Schneider
Managing Director

“Our community support is incredibly important to us, and we are so proud of all the effort that has gone into making this such a meaningful and successful year.”

Little Food Festival

In April 2023, team members from Bunnings Collingwood and the National Support Centre were thrilled to participate in the Little Food Festival once again, hosted by the Sandro Demaio Foundation.

The two-day event held at Fed Square, Melbourne, aims to teach kids about healthy food through education, creativity and fun! At the festival, our team had the pleasure of helping over 2,000 children learn about where their food comes from and how to grow their own vegetable seedlings at home.

Transforming gardens in Lilydale

A group of Bunnings stores and a team from the National Support Centre visited Community Housing in Lilydale, working hard to transform the residents' gardens.

The team planted almost 100 native plants and mulched the area, as well as adding some succulents which were generously provided by a resident's family member.

As One Nyitting

On a sunny 40-degree day in Gidgegannup, Bunnings and Wesfarmers teamed up to participate in the seed collecting program for As One Nyitting.

As One Nyitting is a First Nations social enterprise creating cultural programs and wellness resources for the community including the revegetation of local sites through the Birak Season seed collecting program. The program focused on how the seeds aid the revegetation and environmental sustainability of the local region. This was a very special cultural experience for our team.

Growing Indigenous Cultural Awareness

In line with our commitment to fostering our Indigenous awareness, a team from WA took part in a cultural on Country tour, hosted by Uncle Len and his family at Lake Gwellup. The team learnt about the history of the area, family traditions, living on this land and how we can nurture it for many years to come.

Reds Run support for communities hit by extreme weather

October 2022

Following the extreme weather and flooding which hit Victoria and parts of New South Wales and Tasmania in October, Bunnings threw its support behind The Salvation Army's Flood Relief. In true Bunnings style, we gathered behind the BBQ at every store in Australia and helped raise and contribute $400,000 towards The Salvation Army's Flood Relief.

Epsom-Bendigo, VIC

All funds raised through the Reds Run BBQ went towards supporting impacted communities through the emergency and recovery phase. The funds allowed the Salvos to be on the ground immediately and for the long haul, with financial grants along with practical and emotional assistance.

Our teams in flood impacted regions also actively assisted with product donations and support and care for those who were displaced.

Western Australian disaster relief

February 2023

In January, extreme weather and floods impacted communities across the Kimberley region in northern Western Australia. Bunnings provided support through product donations and assisted collectively with the broader Wesfarmers family.

Bunnings further supported with a state-based Reds Run sausage sizzle and the Western Australian communities showed up in great numbers. The Bunnings WA team, along with the additional support from the Wesfarmers team and The Salvation Army volunteers, raised and contributed over $50,000. These funds were donated to The Salvation Army to support impacted communities through the emergency and recovery phases of the Western Australian floods.

New Zealand team rallies in the wake of natural disaster

In New Zealand during January and February, severe destruction was caused by floods and Cyclone Gabrielle with many New Zealanders losing their homes and livelihoods. Team members were out in the community helping with the clean-up, alongside volunteers and agencies on the ground.

Bunnings assisted relief efforts by supplying $90,000 worth of products and materials, including gumboots, clean-up gear, PPE, storage supplies, water, batteries, generators and gas cylinders, to community groups, Civil Defence and emergency services who distributed these essential goods where they were needed most in the impacted regions.

The Bunnings team once again rallied and came together for a Reds Run sausage sizzle with all funds going to New Zealand Red Cross, to support impacted communities through the emergency and recovery phase. Together with their generous communities, Bunnings raised and contributed $35,000.

Climate and energy solutions

Bunnings recognises that business has an important part to play in reducing carbon emissions and addressing climate change.

Bunnings has a target to achieve 100 per cent renewable electricity by 2025 – and achieve net zero Scope 1 and 2 emissions by 2030.

Significant progress was made towards achieving these targets during the financial year. The progress is largely attributed to new long-term renewable power purchase agreements (PPAs).

In 2022, Bunnings commenced new long-term renewable power purchase agreements for its large sites in Victoria and South Australia. A new renewable electricity contract was also executed for small sites across New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, the Australian Capital Territory and Victoria. In New Zealand, all sites continue to be powered by 100 per cent renewable electricity.

Since 2014, Bunnings has been installing rooftop solar photovoltaic (PV) systems across our Australian store network to grow local electricity generation of renewable power, to help achieve this target.

This year, a milestone was celebrated with the installation of the 100th solar PV rooftop system on the Palmerston Warehouse store in the Northern Territory. As of 30 June 2023, 127 solar PV systems were installed on Bunnings stores across Australia, generating the equivalent energy required to power over 7,000 Australian households for one year.

With the help of onsite solar PV systems, renewable power purchase agreements and the broader emissions reduction program, over 60 percent of the Bunnings network is now powered by renewable electricity.

Circular solutions for a positive impact

Bunnings launched a new plastic plant pot reuse and recycling program in October 2022 at selected stores across Victoria, New South Wales, the Australian Capital Territory, Queensland, Western Australia and

New Zealand. The program is currently available at over 80 store locations across Australia and New Zealand.

Through this program, customers can return used plant packaging made from polypropylene plastic (PP5) for reuse and recycling, including plant pots and stakes. To promote reuse, returned items are also made available to customers free of charge.

Given that many local council recycling facilities cannot accept polypropylene packaging for recycling, Bunnings are proud to offer a circular solution to customers to continue making a positive impact.

National Battery Recycling

Since launching in November 2021, Bunnings' battery recycling program has played an important role in our commitment to deliver solutions to create less waste and recycle more. The program, available across Australia and New Zealand, makes it convenient for customers and tradies to drop off used household and power tool batteries.

As of 30 June 2023, Bunnings was proud to celebrate having collected over 240 tonnes of batteries for recycling. That's the equivalent of over ten million AA batteries! We are thrilled to have achieved this together with our communities.

Sustainable packaging

As a member of the Australian Packaging Covenant Organisation (APCO), Bunnings continues to reduce excess product packaging, improve packaging design for recovery and reduce the use of packaging materials which are difficult for customers to recycle.

Bunnings Sustainable Packaging Guidelines support our team and suppliers to accelerate the transition to sustainable packaging. Bunnings continues to include the Australasian Recycling Label (ARL) on product packaging to help customers dispose of packaging correctly, with the ARL applied to over 1,000 additional products in the Bunnings range during the financial year.

Responsible timber sourcing

Bunnings is committed to ensuring all timber and wood products originate from legal and well-managed forest operations.

As part of this long-held commitment, Bunnings requires all natural forest timber products to be independently certified to Forest Stewardship Council® (FSC®), Programme for the Endorsement of Forest Certification (PEFC) or another equivalent standard, in line with the Bunnings' Responsible Timber Sourcing Policy.

Bunnings continues to conduct due diligence to monitor timber supplier performance. A Responsible Timber Sourcing Survey is conducted quarterly by suppliers of new timber, wood or fibre products to Bunnings to capture the timber species, country of harvest, forest type, country of manufacture, applicable timber certification, and product claims.
