Defect: The child resistant cap may not be properly tightened, which may mean the lids are loose and may come off if the bottle is picked up by the lid. If the lid comes loose and the secondary seal bursts, there is a risk that the user may come into contact with the contents of the product.

Hazard: Exposure to the product may damage the eyes and irritate the throat, hands or skin.

What to do: Consumers should check any product in their possession to ensure that the lid has been tightened and is secure.
