

how to make worm tea

1. Take your brew bag and fill with verasoil worm castings. Use a small trowel or plastic scoop if available.
2. Pull the drawstring to close off the opening of the bag.
3. Place the brew bag with the verasoil worm castings into a watering can or bucket with approximately 9 litres of water (note: the bag will only fit into the opening of larger watering cans).
4. Hold or secure the string to the handle or side of watering can by using a clothes peg.
5. Leave to brew for approximately 15 minutes, with the occasional jiggle to help brew the worm tea.
6. After brewing, lift the bag out. The bag may need a squeeze for better extraction.
7. Water over foliage or base of plant until saturation point has been reached. Repeat every month, or as plant requires. Bottom fill watering techniques can also be used with the verasoil worm tea.

You can reuse your bag up to 4 times, if the brew bag is emptied, rinsed and hung to dry between each use. This brew bag is also fully compostable, so place the entire bag in your composter or green bin after you've finished using it.

Happy brewing!
